Archives of the Judiciary

Republic of Uganda

PREFACE

Title: Archives of the Judiciary of Uganda

Size: 743 boxes, 70,630 files, linear feet unknown

Inclusive Dates: 1939 to 1988

Bulk Dates: 1970s and 1980s

Location: At the time of writing (September 2018) the archive is held in a disused circuit court building in Naguru, Nakaawa, Kampala. The archive is soon to be transferred to the new building housing the Uganda National Archives, on Lourdel Road, Wandegeya, Kampala.

Important Information for Users of the Collection:

Access: Researchers must obtain research clearance from the Uganda National Council for Science and Technology (UNCST) before accessing any government archive repository. The minimum wait period between submitting an application with UNCST and receiving clearance is six weeks, and researchers are encouraged to begin the application process early. For more information, go to: www.uncst.go.ug. Once the researcher has received UNCST clearance, they must present their papers and identification to the National Archivist in order to obtain access to the collection.

Restrictions: As determined by the officers of the Judiciary, and/or by the National Archivist.

Historical Note:

The High Court of Uganda was established in 1902. It was the final court of appeal for all subordinate and native courts in colonial Uganda, with jurisdiction over all persons and matters in respect to criminal and civil cases. In Uganda—as in most other British colonies—'customary' legal courts adjudicated disputes between African litigants, while civil courts tried criminal cases and decided litigation among non-Africans. The High Court was the last recourse in cases tried in both customary and civil courts. Its judges were members of the colonial legal service, most of them trained in England or in India. They were enjoined—under the Uganda Order in Council, 1902—to take 'guidance' from native law where the litigants were Africans, insofar as native law was 'not repugnant to justice and morality'. After Uganda's independence in 1962 the High Court continued to act as Uganda's highest court under the direction of a Nigerian chief justice. In 1967 a new East African Court of Appeal was constituted to hear appear cases originated from Kenya, Uganda, Tanzania or Zanzibar; but for most litigants the High Court continued to function as the decisive voice in matters of law. It was not until the 1990s that Uganda's constitution was revised and a new Supreme Court was established to try cases pertaining to Uganda's presidency.

Scope and Organisation:

Scope: The archive contains over 70,000 files. Its oldest records date to 1939, and there are a scant set of files from the 1940s and 1950s. The great bulk the collection consists of case files from the 1960s, 70s and 80s. There are 506 boxes that contain civil files, and 237 that contain criminal records.

The vast majority of the collection consists of case files containing the first-person testimony of litigants introduced as evidence in the lower courts, filed alongside statements from police, witnesses, and advocates. Some of the material from the lower courts is written in Uganda's vernacular languages, for they were the language of litigation in 'customary' law. But as the case traveled upward through the chain of appeal courts witness statements, petitions and other documentations were ordinarily translated into English. Alongside this rich material emerging from Uganda's courtrooms there is a certain amount of administrative correspondence pertaining to the organization, financing, equipping, and operation of Uganda's court system.

So far as we are aware there is no other archive of this scale or magnitude that is available for research in the whole of Africa. Historians of legal practice have made use of the archives of local courts, but the small-scale collections that scholars and students have hitherto been able to access pale in comparison with the material held in this archive. Here is a legal archive with a truly national scope, containing case files originating from the whole of Uganda. Here matters of great consequence were argued over and decided. Here are the voices of the African litigants, rendered in the first person, arguing over matters relating to marriage, property, and crime. There will be much in this archive to fertilize scholarship on legal history. But more, there will be much to inspire, instruct, and inform Ugandans as they grapple with the lessons of their tumultuous history.

Organisation:
In cataloguing this very large collection there was not time to make a thorough description of each file. What the team sought to do was to produce as much useful, consistent, and accurate information about a file as possible.

The catalogue was organized as follows:

BOX NO	REFERENCE NO	BUNDLE NO	CASE CATEGORY	CASE NO	FILE NAME	FINAL COURT	ORIGINAL COURT	CASE KEYWORD	NOTES

Box No: The number corresponding with the box the file belongs to. Ex: CL 1 (Civil Cases 1) or CRM 1 (Criminal Cases 1). This number has been placed on a sticker on the front of the box, and on the file cover itself.

Reference No: This number contains the prefix CL—meaning 'Civil'—or CRM—meaning 'criminal'.

Bundle No: Many of the files in the Judiciary archive were tied in bundles, covered by a sheet of paper with a code written on it. This information we have recorded as the Bundle Number. This code may take the format: 'CS 1967 97-169' or 'CA DIV 1981'.

Criminal files did NOT have bundle numbers. For criminal files the team simply recorded the date in this field.

Case Category: The majority of the files in this archive are either civil (CS) or criminal (CRM) case files. But there are a number of other categories in which these files were sorted. The team has categorized files according to the label given them by Judiciary clerks when the case was first filed.

Civil Case Categories:
AB – Arbitration Causes
AC – Administrative Causes
BM – Bankruptcy
CA – Civil Appeals
CC – Commercial Causes
CI – Company Cause
CR – Civil Review
CS – Civil Suit
DC – Divorce Causes
EEP – Election Petition
EPA – Election Applications
FC – Family Causes
MA - Miscellaneous App
MC - Miscellaneous Causes
ME – Mediation Applications
MF – Miscellaneous Family
MS – Miscellaneous Suits
OS – Originating Summons
TA – Taxation Applications

Criminal Case Categories:
CRMP – Crim. Misc. Apps
CRMA – Crim. Appeal
CRM – Criminal Case
IN – Inquest
LC – Lunacy Cause
CRMC – Crim. Misc. Cause
CRMR – Criminal Revision

Case No: High Court clerks wrote case numbers on the file cover. The team has recorded these numbers exactly as they appear on the file.

File Name: The file name is generally listed on the file cover and includes the names of the parties involved in the suit. Criminal file names include only the name of the defendant. The team has taken care to record the names of all parties identified on the file covers as accurately as possible.

Final courthouse: The file cover generally indicates where the case was tried. When the case was tried at a court other than the High Court of Uganda the team has recorded that information in the catalogue.

Original courthouse: In appeals cases there is ordinarily information about the courthouse in which the case originated. Where no such information is available the cataloguers have written N/A.

Case Keywords: The case keyword is meant to give an indication of either the nature of the case or what the file contains. The team derived these keywords from a scan through the contents of the file, then summarized the subject of the litigation using the following keywords:

Civil Case Keyword List:

BUSINESS liquidation, shares, dissolution, procedural dispute, restructuring, failure to register, lack of transparency, restoration, licence	GOVERNANCE Constitution (1962 onwards), wrongful use of governmental power, customary and/or native law dispute, separation of powers, election boundary	MALPRACTICE Unlawful use of power, malicious prosecution, unjust jurisprudence, unlawful use of force, unlawful imprisonment, unlawful arrest, torture, embezzlement, wrongful access to records

FRAUD Wrongful sales, forgery, identity theft	ADMINISTRATION Correspondence	BANKRUPTCY
ASSAULT	ARSON

Notes: Cataloguers have used this field to list any additional information, ordinarily by inserting additional keywords to help researchers find files in which they are interested.

Cataloguers have also made a note when there is very significant information regarding either the physical state of the file or the contents (ex: partially damaged or ex: this file is empty), and when there is additional & crucial information about the file.

Example:

2018 Preservation Project

The present catalogue and organizational scheme is the fruit of a four-month preservation project carried out by a team of students, interns, and Judiciary staff between May and August 2018. The project is the fruit of a pleasant and productive collaboration between Makerere University, the University of Michigan, and the Judiciary of Uganda. It is part of a much larger preservation effort taking place across Uganda, one that has been spurred by academic interest as well as the Government's investment in updating its records management system. Since 2011, students from the University of Michigan have been working in partnership with colleagues from Makerere University, Mountains of the Moon University, and government records officers and librarians to preserve, catalogue, and digitize Uganda's national and local government archives. These efforts have been consistently collaborative, achieved through international cooperation and incorporating the time and talents of students from Uganda, Kenya, the U.K., and the U.S. To date, catalogues have been created for the Uganda National Archives and for the District Archives in Kabale, Hoima, Jinja and Kabarole.

Until the project began the archive of Uganda's Judiciary sat in the basement of the High Court, a glorious, ornate building in the center of Kampala. Its five basement storerooms were fairly bulging with paperwork pertaining to its century-long role as the arbiter in Ugandans' legal disputes. The vast bulk of the archive was uncatalogued, and it was impossible therefore for anyone, however industrious, to actually make use of it. In one room there were hundreds of bundles of case files, bound together in twine and grouped largely by date. In the long hallway that runs along spine of the basement repository there were about 200 boxes full of files. These files—which had formerly been scattered about on the floor—were boxed up late in 2017; but none of them were sorted or catalogued. In a third space—at the end of the hallway—there was a repository containing records from Uganda's civil courts.

This project was first conceived in 2017, when Sauda Nabukenya, a doctoral student in History at the University of Michigan, made an initial appraisal of the collection. In January 2018 Dr. Derek Peterson of the University of Michigan made a further assessment. In March 2018 a Memorandum of Understanding was signed between the University of Michigan and the Judiciary of the Republic of Uganda which enabled the two entities to work together in the organization of the archive.

In May 2018 the team relocated the archive from the basement repository at the High Court to a disused circuit court building in Naguru. The Judiciary generously supplied the team with ample working space and with the equipment needed to undertake the work: desktop computers, acid-free boxes, markers, file folders and other gear. Once the infrastructure was in place the team sorted the whole of the archive into two categories—civil and criminal—and placed each deposit in separate boxes. During this initial work of sorting the team removed from the archive semi-current files that concern matters more recent than 1988, i.e. thirty years ago. This is in accordance with the relevant practice in Uganda's archives. The team did not split files or re-arrange materials. Files were catalogued intact, as the team received them.

After developing a cataloguing strategy with consultation by Egetu John Maurice (Records Assistant, Civil Division) and Kirunze Moses (Records Assistant, Criminal Division), the team agreed on cataloguing categories and methods so that they could work consistently. Cataloguing work consumed some three months of constant labor. Team members were in constant consultation with each other and with the team leaders are the classification of specific files. The catalogue was edited and proofread on a daily basis by Riley Linebaugh, the project's technical leader, by Kisongoch Elvis, an intern from Makerere University, and by Akongo Irene Comfort, a staff member of the Judiciary.

At the time of writing the archive is located in the circuit court building in Naguru where the cataloguing took place. It is hoped that—within the next few months—the collection will be relocated to the newly-opened building housing the National Archives and Records Centre, in Wandegeya.

Acknowledgements

This project would not be possible without the financial and administrative support of the Judiciary of Uganda. We particularly thank Mr. Kagole Expedito Kivumbi, Permanent Secretary of the Judiciary of Uganda; H.W. Paul Gadenya, formerly the Chief Registrar of the Judiciary; H.W. Isah Serunkuna, formerly the deputy Chief Registrar; H.W. Isaac Muwata, the Acting Chief Registrar; and Mr. Patrick Barugahare, the Principal Human Resources Officer. We are tremendously thankful for the help that all of these individuals have offered to the project.

The University of Michigan generously funded this project and offered logistical support to members of the team. We particularly thank the Law in Slavery and Freedom Project, the African Humanities and Heritage Initiative, the African Studies Center, the Department of Afro-American and African Studies, and the Office of the Provost, all of which offered funding to support the team's work.

We wish also to acknowledge the help and support of Dr. David Luyombya, of the East African School of Library and Information Sciences, and Dr. Pamela Khanakwa, of the Department of History, Makerere University, for their long and enduring interest and support for this and other archive preservation projects.
